Licences :
- Apache License 2.0
  This license lets you modify, distribute and use the source code as long as they include the original copyright notice and a copy of the license text, this restriction is very minor as it still allows us to use the library, and we just have to keep the licence files in the git repository.
- CC0 1.0
  This license lets anybody use, redistribute, or modify these assets without any limitations or crediting as the creator of these assets have waived their rights to their work, making this very suitable for the project as these kinds of assets can just be used.
- Custom Licence
  This license was unique as it doesnt specifically conform to a regular license, the terms of this license state that the Assets cannot be distributed, sold or claimed as anyones except the creator. Additionally the license stated that the assets cannot be used in AI projects, metaverse or as NFT's. This is suitable for our project as it still allows us to use the assets for our project as long as we credit the creator of the license.
- Open Font License
  This license allows us to use, modify and distribute the asset aslong as we include a license and copyright notice, and that license needs to be the same as the one we used. This is because the asset may have been redistributed under an additional license, meaning that for our use we need to just include the license that was included in the asset
- Attribution 4
  This license lets anyone use, modify and redistribute the asset as long as we credit the creator, provide a link to the license and also if any changes were made. This made it suitable for our project as we could easily add it to the credit page and therefore allow us to use the asset
